

Liberating your own talent

The starting point to liberating your own talent is to build clearer understanding of 'where am I now?'.

We suggest that you set up an 'incident room' to capture and understand this information, in terms of understanding your self and understanding the context you are working in.

Once you understand more about where you are now, you can explore 'where am I going' and plan 'how will I get there'.

